

Something to do with Implicit Bias and Rereading

DATE 1/24/2024 NO.

Implicit bias is like a something-ist/offensive reflex everyone has inside them and is kinda wild. Offensive stereotypes and associations included.

Rereading

Look for important events and names to look up later.

Hidden figures:

Little Rock 9

Troops + guard

Sputnik age / Hidden figures:

Missile gap

inequality burden/barrier

Rereading in Unbroken

Important stuff/phrases/events:

Rape of Nanking, Pearl Harbor, Eugenia, Ofuna interrogation camp, Red Cross, Japanese Military Field Code, Postwar Calls.

Research on it!

Britannica: Nanking massacre = Japanese soldiers burn, destroy, and commit lots of war crimes against the citizens of Nanking/Nanking.

DB Pedia: Japanese military field code = "forbid retreat or surrender... resulted in considerably higher battle fatalities... Suicide attacks."

Britannica: Pearl Harbor = "Japanese had gained a great success... US military casualties totaled more than 3400... Heavy damage was inflicted on both army and navy aircraft on ground."

How it helped:

Showed me how horrible Louie had it to be captured by the Japanese. It also shows how violent the Japanese were at the time, and how hard it must've been for Louie to not give up yet he still made it. This can also connect to the central idea on war's widespread effects ^{XINTE}ruining lots of lives, since it talks about the casualties, destruction, and war crimes.

